INTRODUCTION

The Civil Survey

THE immediate circumstances leading to the taking of the Civil Survey (1654-6) were the statutory commitments of successive Parliaments, in England, in respect of advances of money, by way of adventure, and of the arrears of pay due by the Commonwealth Government to its own officers and soldiers. These obligations were to be satisfied in allotments of Irish land and, as a preliminary measure of enquiry, a survey of the country, founded upon the authentic information of the old inhabitants was directed to be made. The barony was selected as the territorial basis of the survey, as it was to be the ultimate area in which the allotments to the interests concerned were to lie. The extensive information required was of a geographical, proprietorial and economic nature and, for this purpose, the most able of the residents were to be constituted juries. These were to be empanelled by local commissioners appointed under commission.¹

In more than one of the commissions authorizing the survey, and directing the procedure to be followed, the survey to be made was distinctly named the Civil Survey. It was to be made under the jurisdiction of special courts called Courts of Survey. These Courts were to determine and record the possessions of the proprietors of lands and the tenures and titles of their respective estates. For this purpose, power was given to summon, and examine upon oath, such persons as might be considered competent to assist in the discovery of the facts; and further, to demand the production of such evidence of title as was considered necessary. Here, an analogy may be found to those courts which take cognizance of questions of fact only, arising between man and man in his civil capacity. Allowing that the Survey was made under the Civil Authorities, and also, that it was made by the people, or their most knowledgeable men, it is suggested that the Civil Survey was so called because it would be essentially a testified record of the facts concerning the possessions of the subjects, the citizens, and declared to on oath before courts appointed to ascertain such facts.

The Civil Survey was begun in June, 1654, and commissions continued to be issued during 1655 and 1656. Through the zeal and industry of the late W. H. Hardinge, Esq., M.R.I.A., its territorial extent, the names of the commissioners, and the dates of their commissions can be ascertained.² As to the extent of the Civil Survey, it comprehended the whole of Leinster, the whole of Ulster, with the exception of the barony of Farney, in the county of Monaghan; the whole of Munster, with the exception of Clare; in Connacht, only the county of Leitrim was surveyed. This represented in all a Civil Survey of twenty-seven counties. For the remaining five, the earlier survey, called Strafford's survey, was available. According to the Book of Distribution, the Gross Survey—the Survey immediately preceding the Civil Survey, was utilised for the barony of Farney.

What has survived of the Civil Survey extends to parts of three provinces, namely, for Munster—Tipperary, Limerick, Waterford, the barony of Muskerry, Co. Cork and part of one barony in Kerry; for Leinster—Dublin (except New Castle and Upper Cross), Kildare (except Ophaley), Meath, Wexford (except Forth) and the city of Kilkenny; for Ulster—Donegal, Londonderry and Tyrone.

From this survival of the Civil Survey, and from the Commission and Instructions which have been preserved, the functions of the commissioners, the duties of the juries, and the method of exhibiting their survey may be learned.

The functions of the Commissioners included the holding of Courts of Survey, and in having their ascertained particulars engrossed in one or more books, each barony by itself. These engrossments were to be returned, attested under the hands of three or more of the Commissioners, to the Surveyor-General and a duplicate, in like manner, fairly engrossed, attested and sealed up to the Registrar for Forfeited Lands. It appears from the list of the Commissioners for each county, that the same set operated in several counties. Thus, in Ulster, the identical Commissioners were appointed for Antrim, Armagh and Down, and likewise another similar set for Derry, Donegal and Tyrone. In the south and east the same Commissioners were appointed for Waterford and Queen's County; and again the one set for King's County and Longford.

Before the Civil Survey was begun, it was recommended that the Commissioners to be appointed should be the Commissioners of Revenue "upon the place" or "other able and knowing men in the countrey." The names, which have been preserved, can be identified with the family names associated with the landed settlements in Ireland, for a period considerably more than fifty years prior to the Survey. In the north, particularly, the Commissioners would appear to have been proprietors of land. From time to time, new Commissioners were appointed, as the attestations to the Survey, which has survived, show. Mr. Hardinge's list is that of the original Commissioners.

The duties of the local juries were of the widest and most responsible nature. They were to be given "in charge to inquire and find out all and every the particulars" required to be ascertained. They were, when necessary, "to view and tread the meets and bounds of the premises, and to forme all such other matters and things as are perfectly inquireable in courts of survey . . ." These juries were composed—as was indeed attested¹—of "the most able and ancient Inhabitants of the country." Their names have survived for all the baronies of two counties—Tipperary and Limerick. It is possible to identify some of these jurors as proprietors, and it would not be an unreasonable conjecture to assume, in most cases, that they were relatives of proprietors—brothers or elder sons. The juries for corporate towns appear to have been composed of the mayor, aldermen and burgesses, together with representatives of the professional and business interests. Additional jurors were added as assistants by special order. The name of the clerk appointed by two of the Limerick juries is given at the end of the lists of jurors for the barony of Pobblebrien and of the Liberties of Limerick.

Distinct juries were appointed for each barony and were selected as stated for their special knowledge of the territories within which they resided. The number comprising each jury varied. In Limerick they ranged from twenty-four to forty-five for each barony; in Tipperary, from ten to twenty-three. For the distinct surveys to be made of Crown and Church lands the same jurors, in the latter county, were appointed.

The survey of each barony opens with a description of its meares and bounds, and, frequently, with an exposition of the nature of its soil. Its content according to the old land measure is set down, and the description concludes with an account of the parishes, manors and castles within the barony.¹ The boundaries of the parish follow, and at the end of each description, or elsewhere throughout the texts of the various counties, there is usually a statement as to the value of the tithes. The lands comprising the parish, their owners, estimated area, what was profitable and unprofitable, and the respective valuations are then set out in tabular form, intersected by further descriptive particulars relating to the tenures or titles under which each denomination was held. Here the ancestral tenures of the Gael, and the Norman, existing either in 1640 or 1641, are exhibited and recorded, as well as titles "by patent from the Crowne."

Instances of the former will be found in the barony of Ikerrin within the text of volume one. There, the whole parish of Killea is shown to have been individually and "moyetively" distributed between numerous proprietors "all descended out of the house of O'Magher whose title they clayme (viz.) by fee from their ancestors." It is recorded of each that he was the proprietor of the fractional proportion specified by descent from his ancestors. These inherited divisions, the meares of which could "by no way be set forth distinctly" represented, doubtless, the shares to which the proprietors were entitled, individually, in the productivity of the soil. Whether the division was in pursuance of a Brehon decree, or family arrangement, is not recorded. But there is extant for certain lands in the neighbouring barony of Lower Ormond a copy of a Brehon judgment, dated 8th October, 1584, regulating the tenures thereof, and which directs "an honest, equal, brotherly division with each other according to the custom of their ancestors."²

In addition to the tenures, the description of the lands includes an account of their amenities. The area under timber, its distance from the nearest port, the presence of mills, and the varying succulence of rivers and streams, according to the season of the year, are amongst the particulars recorded³ in this section of the Civil Survey. And so, until every parish in the barony was completed.

Thus emerged the "old inhabitants" survey of their country, of its place-names, rendered phonetically into English of the time, of its ancient tenures, of its land measures and territorial divisions. It extended far beyond the discovery of forfeited lands, Crown lands, Church lands, the lands of the English and of Protestant lands, their owners and estimated areas. It revealed and preserved the memory of the ancient bounds, place-names, and antiquities of three provinces. It comprehended the detection of the wealth and valuation of the country in every form under and above the surface of the land. The Civil Survey is not limited to defining the boundaries of forfeited lands; it records the boundaries of baronies "and the course that the said meets and bounds doe runne." It gives independent dealings with lands, transfers by sale, bequests by testament, mortgages, and marriage settlements. It is a description of the physical features of the land from the highest to the lowest denominations—a geography of its mountains, its high roads, its rivers and streamlets, and simultaneously a record of the ownership and title to the lands which these natural boundaries surrounded or divided.

The purpose of the survey has been stated by Mr. Hardinge: "Many persons are under an impression that the Civil Survey was designed as the basis of the satisfactions afterwards made to the soldiers for arrears of pay due to them, and that it was rejected by the Government in consequence of complaints of its inaccuracy. Such an impression is altogether erroneous. This survey was not designed for the purpose assumed. It was a preliminary work, essential to the discovery and description in a legitimate and solemn manner of the forfeited lands, and from which lists technically called 'terriers' were afterwards supplied to the several surveyors for their admeasurement and mapping.

"It was by these maps, and their index sheets, when approved by the Surveyor-General, and sanctioned by Government, and not by the Civil Survey, that the land satisfactions were made to the soldiers and adventurers, as well as to the other interests afterwards let in by the Acts of Settlement and Explanation."

In the indexing of each barony, a uniform method was adopted throughout. The proprietors were distinguished by separate indexes, that of the English usually coming first, and the Irish next. An index of the lands followed these¹, and then an index of "Observations."² The place-names, however, in the barony and parish descriptions were not indexed; nor were the personal names referred to in the descriptive particulars relating to the title to lands by descent, through patent or conveyance. A full index will be forthcoming with the complete publication of the text for each county.

The pagination, in one respect, was also uniform. Each page was numbered at the top of the right-hand corner, and the index was based on this pagination. In some baronies, however, there is recorded a second pagination, on alternate pages. It occurs either at the bottom or side of the page, and suggests a reference to the folios in which the first entries may have been made.

As directed, a number of the Commissioners, usually three, attested or certified the survey of each barony. Their names appear at the end, appended to statements certifying how and when the Survey was made. A statement as to the holding of the Courts of Survey, followed by the names of the jurors, precedes the description of each barony in Tipperary. The names of the Limerick jurors, "sworn and empanelled to enquire and return an exact Survey" appear after those of the Commissioners at the end of the baronies. The jurors for County Dublin are described as "the most knowing and sufficient men," though their names are not returned. The jurors for Waterford though not specified, are described as "the most able and ancient inhabitants of the country." The northern Commissioners certified that the Survey was taken by them, and recorded the date.

When completed, as already indicated, the Civil Survey was to be forwarded to the Surveyor-General, and a duplicate sent to the Registrar for Forfeited Lands. The former set, according to Mr. Hardinge, unquestionably reached its destination. He refers to the statement of Surveyor-General Stone that it was consumed in the fire of 1711. "This statement implies," says Mr. Hardinge, "that the set was complete, and in this office when the fire occurred, but the statement is inaccurate. A large portion of the set had been removed from the Surveyor-General's office . . . before the close of the year 1667—and was not afterwards restored." He then refers to the discovery, in 1817, by the Irish Record Commissioners, of eighty-four "original Civil Survey Barony Books" in the library of Viscount Headfort at Kells, County Meath.

The subsequent history of these books is related in the Statement (see page xxxvii) of Mr. M. J. McEnery, M.R.I.A., Deputy Keeper of Records, and Keeper of State Papers, 1914-1921. Acquired by the Commissioners of Woods, Forests and Land Revenues, they were deposited in the Quit Rent Office, and ultimately transferred to the Public Record Office. Mr. McEnery points out the importance of this addition to the latter office, where it was available for public inspection. Copies of the volumes were then supplied by the Record Office to the Quit Rent Office. A separate statement shows the counties and baronies which these represent (see page xxxviii). With other documents from the Quit Rent Office collection these copies have now been lodged in the Public Record Office.

As to the duplicate set of Civil Survey barony books, destined for the office of the Registrar of Forfeited Lands, Mr. Hardinge says: "The set of barony books, which must be presumed to have reached the office of Registrar of Forfeitures, should have been transferred to the Auditor-General, as the other records of that office were, under the 60th section of the Instructions annexed to the Act of Settlement, about the year 1678; but there exists no evidence whatever from which to infer such a transfer; and I am of opinion that this set of barony books were appropriated antecedently to that year by some person officially, or otherwise, closely connected with the Office of Registrar of Forfeitures; and that at this moment they are reposing in some private library . . ."

The hope expressed in 1862 by Mr. Hardinge, that the publication of his Memoir, on the Manuscript and other Surveys of Ireland, would evoke inquiry, especially in England, may now be renewed.

The legal framework within which the Civil Survey was begun and completed will now be referred to briefly.

The source of authority for the taking of the Civil Survey, resides in that code of English Acts and Ordinances—passed between the years 1642 and 1653—contemporaneous with the wars begun in Ireland towards the close of 1641. A survey of forfeited lands was contemplated from the outset, and the opening Act of the code prescribed the measure to be taken when the English Parliament should declare the existence of conditions which would permit of the survey being made.¹ By an Act passed in August, 1652, it was declared that a position had been reached when a settlement of the Irish nation might be effected.² "Early in 1653, when the Commissioners of the Parliament of England, for the affairs of Ireland, felt themselves in a condition to proceed with a survey of the forfeited lands, they had, as a necessary preliminary, to decide upon the manner of its execution. The ancient modes known in law were two :—1st, by inquisition out of the Chancery or Exchequer, after the precedents of the surveys of the Desmond forfeitures ; 2nd, by commission under the great seal, after the precedent set by James I. in the survey of the six escheated counties. The latter mode was adopted.”¹ On the 22nd June, 1653, a Commission, with Instructions, under the Great Seal of England² was addressed to Charles Fleetwood, Esq., Lieutenant-General of the Army in Ireland, Edmund Ludlow, Esq., Lieutenant-General of the Horse, Miles Corbet, Esq., and John Jones.³ It constituted them Commissioners for putting in execution the instructions, thereto attached, for a perfect survey and admeasurement of various classifications of lands. They were authorised to appoint Surveyor-Generals, and “Surveyors under them,” and “to constitute a fit person of integrity for the Office of Registrar.” This Commission, with Instructions, was ratified and confirmed by the Act for the “Satisfaction of Adventurers and Soldiers” passed on the 26th September, 1653.⁴

The Instructions, accompanying this Commission, prescribed the procedure to be followed, and the personnel to be employed in the three surveys directed to be taken—namely, a survey by inquisition, a survey by admeasurement, and what was called a “Gross Survey.” Under-Surveyors, to be appointed by the Surveyors-General, were directed to “enquire and find out” the landed interests of the inhabitants, and also what were Crown lands and Church lands ; for this purpose they were empowered to hold Courts of Survey. For the survey by admeasurement “persons skilled in the art of surveying” were to be appointed, subject to the approval of the Commissioners, under the warrant of the Surveyors-General.

On the grounds of the utmost urgency, the “Gross Survey” though the last to be named, was directed to be made first, irrespective of what the instructions provided, as to the other surveys. Commissions for this survey were issued, simultaneously, in August, 1653, to the public officers acting as commissioners of revenue, within the fifteen precincts into which the country had been divided. So unsatisfactory, however, were the returns from the Gross Survey,⁵ that official directions were given for the taking of abstracts from the Strafford surveys, and such “other papers, returns, or county books,” as were available. The Gross Survey continued, however, until the following year, when it was suddenly stopped.⁶ Then, by an Order, dated the 14th April, 1654, addressed to the Surveyor-General, Benjamin Worsley, Esq., the other

³ Three of these were the Commissioners of the Parliament of England, appointed in 1650, for the purposes of the Civil Government of Ireland. They were then empowered to put in execution in Ireland, all laws, in force in England for “the sequestration of papists' and delinquents' estates.” The administration of justice the encouragement of learning, and the improvement of the revenue were to be the subjects of their consideration Dunlop : *Cal. surveys, authorised by the Commission, with Instructions, of 22nd June, 1653, were directed to be begun.¹

The initial proceeding under this Order would appear to have been the consideration of the instructions to be issued for the making of the Civil Survey, and the Survey by admeasurement. A Committee was appointed for the purpose, by the General Council of Officers, and it reported on the 11th May, 1654.² This report was mainly concerned with the principles and the methods to be adopted and followed in the admeasurement of estates and their surrounds. As to the Civil Survey, the procedure had been already fully indicated by the Instructions of June, 1653, and the Committee then added nothing to these save a recommendation on the subject of the Courts of Survey. For "their better performance," the Committee advised that the instructions to be issued should be directed to the "Commissioners of Revenue upon the place" or "other able and knowing men in the country." Whether by virtue of this recommendation or not, Commissions, with Instructions, began to be addressed, in the following month, to sets of Commissioners for each county in Ireland, excepting the counties of Clare, Galway, Mayo, Roscommon and Sligo. With regard to these counties "the Strafford survey, then extant, contained as specific an account of the lands, their proprietors and possessors, as any new work of the kind could do."³

The sequence in which the Commissions, with Instructions, were sent to the local Commissioners was based on the priority of the appropriations of the counties of Ireland specified in the Act of Satisfaction of September, 1653. Ten counties, in the first place, were set aside for the satisfaction of the Adventurers and Soldiers, and the earliest Commissions, with Instructions, were issued in respect of these counties. Fortunately, specimens have been preserved and are reproduced (see page xxxi). It is from the examination of these that the magnitude of the Civil Survey will be learned.

Within this legal framework, the Civil Survey was begun. The last date of which there is any record for the issue of a Commission is the 1st September, 1656, for county Monaghan. Eighteen Commissions were issued in 1654, covering the same number of counties. There is strong evidence to support the opinion that the survey of these was completed before the summer of 1655, and a statement by Mr. Hardinge on this point will be quoted presently. Two-thirds of the work would, therefore have been completed in about twelve months. For the remaining nine counties, seven Commissions were issued between 1655 and 1656; the Commissions for two counties—Cavan and Fermanagh, have not been found. While no definite date can be assigned for the completion of the Civil Survey, the year 1656 may be said to have witnessed the issue of the final Commissions under which its far-reaching enquiries were made.

It has already been stated that in more than one of the Commissions, the Surveys to be taken were distinctly named "The Civil Survey,"⁴ This is the specific and official appellation. Mapped admeasurements, contemporaneous with the Civil Survey, were at times also brought within this designation. "It was the unsatisfactory nature of the survey taken under this Order—the so-called Civil Survey—which led Petty to offer to undertake a more exact admeasurement of the forfeited lands in Ireland."¹ This Order has been previously noticed. It was the Order dated 14th April, 1654, which, on the failure of the Gross Survey, directed the taking of the other surveys authorized in June, 1653. In pursuance of this Order, and by virtue of the Act of September, 1653, two distinct sets of instructions were issued; one to the local Commissioners, for the taking of the Civil Survey, and the other, some time later, to the surveyors who were to admeasure the forfeited lands according to certain rules. The Report of the Committee appointed "to consider the business of the Surveys," dated September 24th, 1654, clearly shows that it was the considered inadequacy of these rules that led to Petty's proposals "for a more exact admeasurement."² The Civil Survey had been placed in other hands four months previously, and proceeded to a conclusion, in the manner first appointed, as what has survived of it definitely attests. Neither in authorship nor correction can Petty be identified distinctly with it. Rather his total dependence on the Civil Survey is a distinguishing feature of its history.

The Instructions to the Local Commissioners directed that out of the surveys taken, abstracts containing the names of lands, and their boundaries, should be delivered to those authorized to make the admeasurements. Petty's contract of the 11th December, 1654, left this procedure undisturbed.³ But time was the essence of this contract, so far as Dr. Petty was concerned. He had contracted to perform the work of admeasurement "within one year and one month next" after the date of his agreement. Immediately pressure began to be employed for one return or another. On the 20th December, it was ordered "that all commissioners which are employed in the civil survey do take care with all speed to furnish Dr. Petty or his assigns, with the abstracts of all the forfeited lands in each county and barony . . . to the end the said Dr. may be directed unto all and every of the said lands to be surveyed by him."⁴ On the 25th December, the "Committee touching the manner of Surveys" requested the Lord Deputy to obtain from the Committee "for the Civil Survey" an estimate of all the forfeited lands both profitable and unprofitable.⁵ On the 12th February following a further Order was issued: "Ordered, that it be referred to the committee for removing obstructions in the surveys undertaken by Dr. Petty, to meet . . . and consider of the proceedings of the commissioners for the civil survey, and how the concealments of lands may be remedied, how far the present surveys may be of use, and what course is to be taken for having true and full civil surveys returned to remain of record for public use. And they are to treat with the commissioners-general concerning abstracts to be given of the civil survey."⁶ The explanation of the urgency that had arisen is manifest from Dr. Petty's "Humble Remonstrance concerning his extraordinary Grievances."⁷

“And first,” he complained, “your petitioner sheweth that through the backwardness of the Civil Survey, and want of abstracts, he was exceedingly damnified. At first, that having none at all ready at the first sealing of his contract hee, notwithstanding, out of zeale to promote the service sett out sixty instruments to enquire of the country, which proved soe confused, as that the whole charge of what was done untill the latter end of February was wholly lost.” That Dr. Petty required more than abstracts is evident from the continued expression of his grievances, thus :

“For want of the bookes of the Civil Survey your petitioner hath been often put to the trouble and charge of two or three admeasurements instead of one.” And, finally, he complained : “Your petitioner after long sollicitation finding noe hopes of having the civil survey of the countyes of Carlow and Wicklow, hath notwithstanding adventured to survey and measure them . . . to the end of the season for doeing the same might not slipp and bee lost, to the prejudice of the Commonwealth and the Army.” In whatever quarter the delay may have rested, it can scarcely be ascribed to those charged with the taking and attesting of the Civil Survey. That, for the County Tipperary, for example, was completed, with the exception of two baronies, before the end of October, 1654, two months before the signing of Dr. Petty’s contract. This will be seen from the separate statement on this county (see Vol. I., page xi). According to Mr. Hardinge, who had all the records at his disposal, “the Civil Survey of most of the baronies included within the said articles (Petty’s agreement) was returned . . . before March 1655, and many of them before the date of Petty’s articles of undertaking ; so that no impediment interposed to prevent his making an immediate commencement of the admeasurement and mapping work.” This certainly clears the jurors and local commissioners. It may be pointed out, however, that the Civil Survey was required for another purpose at this time. In the same month that Dr. Petty’s agreement was made—December, 1654—Commissioners commonly called the Athlone Commissioners, were appointed in connection with the Transplantation proceedings. “As the whole nation was declared guilty of rebellion it lay on each claimant to prove the extent and nature of his estate. To check the claimants the Commissioners were furnished with, amongst other books, the Civil Survey.”¹

Whatever may have been the cause of the “backwardness” of which Dr. Petty complained, his “grievances” may be interpreted, perhaps, as being amongst the earliest tributes to the Civil Survey. It is to be apprehended, however, that if some of the surveys were to prove less informative in descriptive detail than others, the deficiency was to be related to the pressure residential either in Petty’s contractual obligations for the performance of his own survey, or in the requirements of “The Court of the Commissioners for the Claims and Qualifications of the Irish.”

THE CIVIL SURVEY OF KILDARE

THE Civil Survey of Kildare was made under the authority of a Commission, with Instructions, dated the 20th September 1654.¹ Though the Commission and Instructions, are not available, specimens of those issued for another county have been preserved and are included in this volume (see p. xxxi). It may be presumed that the terms of the Commission and Instructions were alike for all counties in respect of which they were issued. Some particulars of the original Kildare Commission as to the names of the Commissioners, the baronies to be surveyed, the date of the Commission and Instructions have been preserved by Hardinge in his paper on Surveys in Ireland 1640-88.² According to this authority the Civil Survey of all Kildare baronies was directed to be made: Carbury, Clane, Great Connell, Ikeathy and Oughterany, Kilcullen, Kilkea and Moone, Naas, Narragh and Reban, Salt, and Offaly. The present volume includes the Civil Survey of these baronies with the exception of that for the last-named territory.

Though the text for Offaly is not available save for a small section relating to Church lands, being part of a separate return (p. 219) for the whole county, evidence that the Survey of the barony was made is afforded by the Kildare Book of Survey and Distribution compiled some years after the Restoration. Particulars there recorded of proprietorship within this region, as at the year 1641 with details of lands and acreages have been abstracted and are printed as Appendix B (p. 237). It may be added that the origin and history of Books of Survey and Distribution with an account of the various surveys and other documents from which they were compiled are features of the Introduction to the Roscommon volume—the first in this new series—published by the Irish Mss. Commission.

The distinct Civil Survey made of each of the baronies was attested in accordance with their Instructions by Commissioners appointed to hold Courts of Survey in the baronies of the county. With the appropriate regional name inserted the text of each barony is introduced by the statement: "The Survey or Estimate of the Barony of [Salt] taken by us whose names are hereafter subscribed by virtue of a Commission from ye Right Honble. the Lord Deputy & Councill bearing date the XXth of September 1654."

The same set of commissioners certified for all the baronies including the separate return of Church lands printed at p. 219: Sa. Nichols, Ja. Peisley and Hen. Makepeace.³ The last two are included in Hardinge's list of Civil Survey commissioners for the county which also included the names of Wm. Sands, Francis Spicer and adding "and others." It is regrettable that the names of the jurors have not been preserved.

³ This name is rendered "Makespeare" (p. 33 at Salt bar.

No date, however, was furnished as to when the Survey was made, the Commissioners merely appending their names at the end of each baronial return. According to Petty, no part of the Civil Survey was available at the date of the sealing of his contract—11th December 1654; the first abstracts of the Survey as a whole that he did receive, it may be noted, were in respect of Kildare county but “they were so few” that he could not “sett forth his instruments.”⁴ The opinion may be ventured, however, that the Kildare returns were well advanced, if not completed, by the summer of 1655. In support of this may be advanced the measures taken during the same year for the creation of a new Pale⁵ and the repeated statement throughout the text of several baronies—relative to the inability to obtain certain information—that “most of the ancient inhabitants” were “either dead or transplanted into Connaught.” This calls for further reference at a later stage. It may also be observed that the year “1655” has been inscribed on two of the Kildare Down Survey barony maps—Salt and Naas—and it is not unlikely that it was with one or other of these regions the Civil Survey of the county began.

The pagination of each barony is distinct in itself and on it was based the indexes supplementing the respective baronial returns. Certain pages (verso) throughout the text, though numbered, were not utilised; where this occurs attention has been called in a foot-note. Collation with the Kildare Book of S. & D. is confirmatory of a complete text in these instances. There is the further reassurance of the indexes which have been tested for entries against the pagination of the blank pages. It may be recalled here that these indexes are of (1) proprietors in 1641 distinguished by their qualifications as defined by the text—“Irish Papist”—“English Protestant”—(2) of “Townes Names” (3) of “Timber Woods and Commons” and (4) “Observations.” Care must be exercised in the use of these indexes which do not include names of parties to deeds recited in the course of the text, or of claimants to land by purchase or otherwise. Likewise are omitted the names of the owners of tithes; these are set out at the end of each parochial return save in certain instances to which further reference will be made. Particular caution is called for in regard to the “Index of Townes Names”; here where numerous lands are listed against a proprietor, the first place-name only may have been indexed; some emendations in these connections are indicated by square brackets.

Though the value of lands as they were “worth to be let” is given in the text in respect of the year 1640, no year has been ascribed to the proprietorship specified in the first column of the statistical sections. This must be regarded as “1641” in accordance with the Commission issued for the taking of the Survey.⁶ Otherwise the particulars called for by Government were furnished in the form required, barony by barony. Forfeited lands are distinguished by the proprietor’s qualification—

⁴ Hist. The Down Survey, ed. Lacom, pp. 120-1; the editor (p. 332) states that Petty “had surveyed Carlow and Kildare without the aid of the Civil Survey at all.”

“Irish Papist” ; land belonging to persons falling within the description “English Protestant” are similarly distinguished, whereas “Church lands” are the subject of a separate return. An account is given of buildings, quarries, woods, commons and so forth. The frequent references to the existence of mills—corn and cloth—in each of the baronies will be noted. Excluding Offaly—the largest of the Kildare baronies—some 93 mills are listed for the remaining nine baronies, no less than 26 being returned for Salt. The high proportion of land returned in these baronies as “Arable” is significant in this connection. The table of “Observations”, in the index section of each barony provides a convenient guide to the location of the mills.

Some parishes of the text extend into other counties and many into more than one barony of the county itself—over one hundred parishes are comprehended by the present volume. For these part parishes notes have been provided guiding the investigator. Nearly two centuries subsequent to the taking of the Civil Survey the eastern and western boundaries of Kildare were extended to include parishes formerly appertaining to other counties, the transfer involving an addition of considerably over 15,000 statute acres.⁸ This followed on the requirements of Government expressed in the Acts 6, Geo. IV. c. 99 and 6 and 7 Wm. IV, c. 84, at the period of the inauguration of the Ordnance Survey and General Valuation of Ireland. At the same time new parochial locations of lands were authorised to which also a measure of guidance is afforded at the opening pages of the baronial returns. Reference may here, perhaps, be made to an instance of parochial revision, under the legislation cited, in respect of one historic region of the county—the Curragh of Kildare—apostrophised “the plain of the beautiful sward.”⁹

Though unhappily the Civil Survey for the barony of Offaly in which the Curragh is located, is not available, the Kildare Book of S. & D. provides an alternative source. There the Curragh is returned within the parish of Tully as will be seen at page 241 of the present volume (Appendix B); it is likely that the missing Civil Survey text provides a similar location. A certified copy of a fragment of the original Down Survey map of Tully, in the Quit Rent Office collection, likewise indicates the Curragh as being within this parish.¹⁰ On reference, however, to the relative 6" Ordnance Survey

⁹ For papers on the history of The Curragh, see R. I. A. Proc. vol. IX (1864-66) pp. 343-55 by W. M. Hennessy and the Kildare Arch. Soc. Journal, vol. III (no. 1) by Lord Walter FitzGerald. The former refers to the “Descriptive account of the County of Kildare” drawn up for Sir William Petty by Mr. T. Monk between 1660 and 1664.

maps of 1837 (Sheets 22, 23 & 28) a new parochial arrangement is found. The Curragh is shown as consisting of two townlands each with a distinct parochial assignment: the townland of Curragh in the parish of Kildare containing 2,744 statute acres and the townland of Curragh in the parish of Ballysax—2,141 statute acres. It is no doubt to the first of these divisions Comerford refers in his Collections for the Dioceses of Kildare and Leighlin, when he states that "the old parochial district of Tully or Coghlanstown" was partly "in the present parish of Kildare." As regards Ballysax parish, investigations disclosed that between the years 1836 and 1841 its area had been considerably augmented¹¹ and for an explanation of this it became necessary to refer to the Ordnance Survey authorities. It would appear that at the time the Ordnance Survey of the county was being prepared certain parts of the Curragh were then found to be outside the bounds of adjacent parishes. The Assistant Director, Colonel MacNeill, very kindly intimated that on the Ms. plan, drawn from the original survey, the part of the Curragh included in the Ballysax parish was shown thus: "Part of the parish of Ballysax—Extra Parochial"; likewise the northern portion of the Curragh was shown as "Part of the parish of Kildare—Extra Parochial." Parochial conflict between respective surveys of the 17th and 19th centuries may thus, in at least one instance, be illustrated.

It is quite a different problem to determine the boundaries or ascertain the parochial contents of the "County of Kildare" said to have been formed by King John in the year 1210. "Vagueness of the territorial divisions and of the shrievalties associated with them was characteristic of all the so-called counties of King John."¹² It would seem however that it was not until 1297 that Kildare acquired statutory recognition as an independent county. The statute 25 Edw. 1. enacts that "the county of Kildare which was formerly a liberty intente to the county of Dublin be henceforth a county by itself, together with the Crosslands and other lands of the parcellers of the lordship of Leinster, contained within the precinct of the same totally discharged from the jurisdiction of the sheriff of Dublin . . ." ¹³ While this statute leaves everything to be determined as to the regions comprising this county, the research of zealous investigators discloses that it extended far beyond the limits of the present county into the modern counties of King's, Queen's and Wicklow: "Thus in 1297 a list of coroners of Kildare shows that county to have included Offaly, Leix and Arklow."¹⁴ The ancient county, it may well have been, extended into some five dioceses; it will be recalled that in addition to that of Kildare the modern county forms part also of the dioceses of Dublin and Leighlin.

¹² "The Counties of Ireland" by C. Litton Falkiner; R. I. A., Proc. vol. XXIV, sec. c. p. 178: "It is clear," Mr. Falkiner states "that the liberty of Leinster was confirmed in right of Strongbow's daughter to William Marshall, Earl of Pembroke, by King John, and that on the division of Leinster, among the five co-heiresses of the latter, the five divisions of Carlow, Kilkenny, Wexford, Kildare and Leix were regarded as separately enjoying, within their respective territories, the same palatine privileges which had pertained to the undivided liberty of Leinster. That Leinster was long regarded as preserving its palatine privileges may be seen by the Statute 25 Ed. I., in which 'the whole community of Leinster' is referred to as 'lately but one liberty'."

The precise date at which the boundaries of the county, as presented by the Civil Survey, received their definition is not easy to fix; it may be inferred, however, that the formation of the adjoining King's and Queen's counties in pursuance of the Act 3 & 4 Philip & Mary c.11 (1556) determined in large measure the delimitation of Kildare as it was known in 1654 and substantially at the present day; allowance should be made for possible revision of the eastern boundaries following the delimitation of Dublin, the erection of Wicklow county in 1606 and, of course, so far as later times are concerned, the Ordnance Survey revisions of nearly a century ago.

As thus formed the county represented the ancient territories of Cairbre Uí Ciardha or Carbury, Uí Faeláin or Offelan, Uí Muireadhaigh or OMurethi and about half Uí Failghe or Offaly, these territories representing respectively the inheritances of the OKearys, OByrnes, OConnors Faly and OTooles.¹⁵ A letter in the O.S. collection (R.I.A.) contains, according to O'Hanlon,¹⁶ a "long and most valuable dissertation on the ancient territories of the county of Kildare, with an accurate ancient map of these territories elegantly executed with pen and ink and signed J. O'Donovan." There is also available in this connection a paper by Lord Walter FitzGerald accompanied by a map which the author states had been "compiled from John O'Donovan's works."¹⁷ In a further paper¹⁸ based principally on his examination of the Elizabethan Fiants, Inquisitions and Funeral Entries, Lord Walter specifies the names of ancient Anglo-Norman families who, as at the year 1600, had held great possessions in the county. As a result of the wars begun in 1641, he asserts, they had altogether disappeared with the exception of the house of Leinster; history had repeated itself in so far that 500 years earlier "these same Anglo-Norman families had overcome and driven out the original lords of the soil."

Besides the FitzGeralds, Berminghams, Eustaces, Suttons, Wogans, Wellesley or

¹⁴ Falkiner, op. cit. p. 178; see, also, Ware's Antiquities of Irel., vol. II, p. 33 et seq. (ed. Harris) where from the Black Book of the Exch. (Ireland) "and sundry Pipe Rolls" numerous places are mentioned formerly reputed to be in Kildare: "the manor of Geashill now in the King's county was the ancient inheritance of the Earls of Kildare and anciently reputed to stand in co. Kildare as is manifest from an inquisition taken at Naas 3, Edw. II, . . . that the territory of Offaly . . . is charged with twelve Knight's Fees . . . in the co. of Kildare. So in a Plea Roll 6, Ed. III . . . twelve ploughlands lying in the remotest part of Leix, now a barony of the Queen's co., as then lying in the co. Kildare. So the manor of Sion (now called Shane) held . . . as of the manor of Donemaske. A Plea Roll of 21 Edw. III. shows that Connel O Moore of Leix . . . acknowledged that he held his manor of Bellet . . . of Roger Mortimer as of his manor of Dunamaske; and by the whole tenor of the Record it appears that these lands were then in the county of Kildare."

It will be recalled that the Diocese of Kildare includes baronies and parishes forming part of King's, Queen's and Wicklow counties.

In the Journal of the Kildare Arch. Soc. vol. III, pp. 336-7, Lord Walter FitzGerald gives a list of Kildare baronies in A.D. 1350. Those which do not correspond with names in the present text are (1) Donlost, (2) Otmy (3) Maynotheslee, (4) Del Sant. He suggests that (1) may have been the portion of the bar. of Narragh & Rheban which lies on the Queen's co. side of the Barrow & adjoining which are the townlands of Dunbrin Upr. & Lr.; (2) he identifies as the present bar. of Clane and (3) & (4) as the present baronies of North & South Salt.

Catalogue of Pipe Rolls, VIII. Ed. II (1315-16) 39th Rep. D.K.P.R.I. (p. 67) refers to the barony of Clonconry, to the barony of Kill as also to that of Kilka.

Weslys and others of old Anglo-Norman stock, whose long seignorial association with the county may, perhaps, partly be explained by a strict entail of their estates,¹⁹ the Civil Survey includes some "New English" proprietors under the well-known names of Adam Loftus, Lord Viscount of Ely, Sir James Ware, Sir William Parsons, and the Earl of Strafford. The dissolution of religious houses and the attainder of James Eustace, Viscount Baltinglass and others brought to the Crown numerous lands which led to the creation of new proprietors.²⁰ While the Civil Survey does not distinguish lands which had thus come to the Crown the subsequent grants made thereof frequently recite their former proprietorship. In addition to the Fiants Henry VIII—Elizabeth, and the Calendars of Patent Rolls, there is happily available in the Dublin Public Record Office the series entitled "Records of the Rolls" included in Lodge's Mss. Of this valuable collection there is a description in the 55th Report (pp. 116-22) by the former Deputy Keeper, Mr. James F. Morrissey. Within this series comprising many volumes are abstracts of the enrolments on the Patent and Close Rolls "from the 31st year of King Edward I to the 31st year of King George II." Besides indexes of names of persons (surnames only), separate indexes are provided for manors, abbeys, rectories, advowsons, fishings, weares, ferries, etc., under the several counties.

That other sources should be consulted is illustrated by the history of one Kildare family whose proprietorial association with the county dated from the 16th to the 18th century. "The last of the Alens connected with St. Wolstans [Sir Luke] spent a good deal of his time in France where he was called the Count de St. Wolstan. He was an officer in the regiment of Berwick, and fought with the Irish Brigade in the battle of Fontenoy in 1745. In consequence of the active part he had taken with the French in their wars with the English, both in Europe and India, he lost all rights to his Irish possessions and they were sold in 1752 by the Court of Exchequer."²¹ The association with St. Wolstan's began in 1536 when John Alen, Master of the Rolls, received a grant of the "scite, circuit, and lands of the late monastery of St. Wolstans" with the manors of Donaghcumper, Kildrought and other lands for ever.²² These lands are set out by the present text (p. 17) as in the possession of Lady Alen; it is stated that the "stone house" at St. Wolstan's was worth £2,000 in 1640 "but long since burned is now valued at three hundred pounds."

Is it to be presumed that the sale of the Alen estate by the Court of Exchequer was in consequence of the Irish Act passed in 1745 (19 Geo. 2, c. 7) "for the more effective preventing his Majesty's subjects from entering into foreign service . . ."? Under this Act any person who without licence was an officer, soldier or mariner in the service of the French King or the King of Spain would from and after the 8th October 1746 be deemed to have been disabled to hold any manors or lands or any estate whatever personal as well as real either by descent or purchase or otherwise. The Act further provided that any estate which belonged on March 25th, 1746 to any such person "shall and may be sued for at law, or by bill in equity for discovery and relief and be recovered by any protestant or protestants in such manner as any lands . . . conveyed to or in trust for papists may be sued for and recovered by virtue of an Act" of the 8th year of Queen Anne.²³ The method of procedure thus laid down has precluded, doubtless, the compilation of a return of whatever other estates, if any, were confiscated in Kildare or elsewhere in Ireland under the Fontenoy Act of 1745.

As regards the Alen estate the Repertories to the Exchequer Decrees (1624-1804) in the P.R.O. should be consulted. Several decrees between 1739 and 1743 directed a sale of so much inter alia of St. Wolstan's and Donaghcomper as would satisfy the payment of monies claimed, under deeds of settlement, to be due. This was not effected apparently for some considerable time. A memorial of a deed dated 27 May 1756 (Registry of Deeds Office) recites the sale of these lands to Robert (Clayton) Bishop of Clogher for £10,500 paid by him to the Court of Exchequer. Apart from the Fontenoy Act of 1745, the existing laws against Roman Catholics would, in the circumstances, have deprived Sir Luke Alen, Comte de St. Wolstan of his inheritance.²⁴

Historically, the most interesting name perhaps returned by the present text (p. 175) is that of "Mr. Roger Moore of Ballina." This was none other than Colonel Rory O'More who for his participation in the wars begun in 1641 was declared by the Commonwealth Act of 1652, with his brother Lysagh, incapable of pardon for life and estate. The confiscation so enacted comprehended inter alia the lands of "Ballynae" (Ballina), situate in the barony of Carbury, granted in 1574 by Queen Elizabeth to "Calloghe O'More, Gentleman, son and heir of Rorie O'More deceased"; such lands were returned by the Civil Survey jurors as being in the possession of Mr. Roger Moore in 1641. The unexpected presence of an O'More among Kildare proprietors—under patent from the Crown—may perhaps best be understood in the light of the varying methods expressed in State documents, for the expulsion of the family from its native territory.

A century previous to the Act of 1652, nearly to the year, the countries of the "Seven Septs of Leix," of which the O'Mores were one,²⁵ had—by the Acts 3 & 4

Philip & Mary, c. 1 & 2—been confiscated and shired as the Kings' and Queens' counties. Leases by the Crown (temp. Edwd. VI) had been granted on the condition that the lessees should not "cause any of the lands to be inhabited by any of the name of O'More or of such surname as were possessors in the country of Leix."²⁶ Elizabethan grants made under the authority of the legislation of Philip and Mary contained new and revised restrictions for grantees of which one was the prohibition to maintain "any man of Irish blood accustomed to bear arms born outside the county without license . . ."²⁷ What followed on this plantation has been succinctly described by the editors of the State Papers (I) 1608-10 (p. LXXIII): "These counties (Kings and Queens) presented a nearly continual scene of warfare between the colonists and ancient inhabitants, the Moores and the other septs having risen in insurrection and been suppressed no less than eighteen times between Queen Mary's settlement and the accession of James I. In 1607 they were brought so low that Sir Arthur Chichester concluded they might be easily compelled to transplant. If not transplanted he thought, they would be utterly extinguished."

Deportations to Kerry, Thomond and Connacht, under agreements, followed in due course.²⁸

State policy of expulsion from Leix proceeded on different lines as regards the princely family of O'More; it was characterised by a Crown grant, as already indicated, of a substantial estate in the neighbouring county of Kildare. The terms of the grant to "Calloghe O'More" are fuller in Lodge's Abstracts of the Rolls than in the Eliz. Fiant 2448 and may here be given: "In consideration of his good services and that he and his heirs for the future might behave themselves faithfully to the Crown the Queen pursuant to Letters dated at Greenwich 22 April 1574 granted thereby to him and his heirs for ever the Lordship and Manor of Ballynaa, Colnoghe, Thomastown, Cadameston, Ballynemone, Norney, Cloneaghe and Toneragye Co Kildare with all rents services customs and temporal hereditaments to the said manor belonging—the Estate of Walter Delahyde attainted. To hold to him and his heirs by the tenth part of a knight's fee rent £27 : 8 : 0—3 August 1574."

The possessions so granted to Calloghe O'More were on his death in 1618²⁹ inherited by his eldest son Roger or Rory who on the 22 October 1641 was indicted of high treason, his right and title to the estates being declared forfeited.³⁰ Described as

Carried into Spain when a child, he returned soon after Charles's accession . . . His favourite project was to unite the Milesian and Anglo-Norman Catholics in one brotherhood . . . So clearly did the people understand his labours that this was their watchword—"Our trust is in God, and our Lady, and Rory O'More." the chief military figure of the Confederate Catholics in the reign of Charles I., Rory O'More has also been credited as being "the most humane of Irish leaders."³¹

Under a grant of the Commission of Grace dated 16th October 1686 the manor of Ballyna was restored to "Charles Moore Esq."³² If still available the papers relevant to this grant should throw light on the history of the family between 1652 and its date.³³

In a note at p. 80 of the Description of Ireland, 1598, by the editor, Father Edmund Hogan, S.J., it is stated that from "Ruary O'More, Prince of Leix in 1555, is descended the Right Hon. R. More-O'Ferrall of Ballyna."

The explanation for the absence, in particular instances, from the Kildare Civil Survey of returns directed to be made as to the ownership and value of tithes is provided by the text itself: "that most of the inhabitants were either dead or transplanted into Connaught"; in one instance it is the "most ancient inhabitants" who had disappeared. This statement will frequently be found throughout the baronies of Ikeathy and Oughterany (pp. 197-218), Narragh and Reban (pp. 81-102) and Kilcullen (pp. 73-80). The opinion may be ventured that, apart from the general Transplantation Order of 14th October 1653,³⁴ the removal from Kildare was accelerated and intensified by the proceedings to establish a new English Pale of which Kildare was to form a part with five other counties.³⁵ These may be very briefly noticed.

By an order of the Commissioners of the Commonwealth dated 17th July 1654, part of the counties of Dublin, Kildare and Carlow and the whole of the counties of Wexford and Wicklow were declared to be "Out of protection."³⁶ South of the Liffey and within the Barrow "no Irish whatsoever" were to reside without special licence. It was directed that this defined region "should be thoroughly and seasonably planted and inhabited by Protestants of this and the English nation." The removal of the inhabitants was to be effected by the 20th October 1654 but numerous petitions from Protestant proprietors requesting that they might retain their own tenants and servants led to the date of departure being extended until May 1655. A further extension until October was allowed provided licences were obtained from the Army officers appointed for the purpose.³⁷

It is conjectured that the inability of the Civil Survey Commissioners to obtain the information indicated was due to the exodus from Kildare under these orders; there is the further inference that it was at this time the Civil Survey of the county was made. Other documents however must be noticed in conjunction with the textual explanation that inhabitants had been transplanted into Connacht. Doubtless this statement can be confirmed in some instances ; it may be suggested however that for many people " Connacht " connoted any place—far or near—of likely refuge. There is for example the significant order of 10th June 1656 : " Divers of the Irish nation have of late removed themselves out of the neighbouring counties into the county Wicklow whereby that fast country is likely to become a nest . . . of loose and dangerous persons who, from the great fastnesses there, may have the means and opportunity to disturb the peace and quiet of that county . . ." ³⁸ The " List of Transplanted Irish 1655-1659 " may also be cited. ³⁹ This document signed by the Deputy Surveyor-General sets out, in juxtaposition to the names of transplanters, the acreages decreed to them in Connacht. Among the thousands of names returned in this list only about six of old Kildare families, with addresses within the county, can be found. It may be added that several Roscommon baronies had been assigned in 1655 for the benefit of transplanters from Kildare and elsewhere and there is available for research in this connection the Headfort set of Books of S & D. now located in the Dublin P.R.O. ; the survival of these books provides a useful source for collation with the " List of Transplanters " mentioned above. ⁴⁰

Relaxation of the severity of the Commonwealth orders for the clearance of Kildare is indicated by certain proceedings occurring within a few years subsequent to the Civil Survey and which suggest (1) the return of inhabitants to their homes and (2) the existence of conditions for obtaining information not previously available. As regards (1) it will be noted from documents published in Comerford's Collections ⁴¹ that at a Sessions held in 1658, at Naas, more than 100 persons residing within the baronies of Kilkea and Moone and of Clane "all Popish Recusants" were convicted for refusing the Commonwealth oath of abjuration ; as to (2) a copy of a Kildare inquisition, 20th October 1657 (T.C.D. Mss) giving inter alia returns of ecclesiastical revenues of Kildare parishes, recites that it was taken at Naas on the " Oaths of good and lawful men of the County " and by the " testimony of divers ancient and credible witnesses." ⁴²

The Inquisition just quoted provides material for collation with the Civil Survey notably as regards tithes and place-names ; it calls for notice here since, so far as at present known, this copy is the only evidence of the holding of this particular inquiry.

In the Catalogue of Mss., Trinity College, indexed under " Inquisitions," the copy contains according to the numeration of the text, 26 pages (f'scap) ; actually there are 27 pages two having been given the same numeration. Closely written in a small neat hand, the source from which the copy was made is not shown by any certificate or statement on the face of the document. The terms of a Commission dated 30th July 1657 are first recited, these comprehending a wide range of subjects foreshadowing the great ecclesiastical commissions of two centuries later. A brief summary of the terms may here be given :

To enquire (1) what and how many parishes, parsonages, vicarages and presentations and whatsoever other spiritual and ecclesiastical benefices were within Kildare county (2) the names of the patrons and of the present incumbents and of what and how many towns such parishes were comprised (3) in what part of each parish the church or chapel was situated, the condition of repair, and the distance of the farthest part of the parish therefrom (4) the yearly value of the glebes and tithes before the rebellion in 1640 (5) the names of unauthorised persons who had received revenues without having accounted to the Commonwealth (6) the then value of such glebes and tithes (7) what parishes required division or amalgamation (8) what parishes were impropriate and what allowances were made by the impropiators for maintenance of the churches (9) what free schools alms houses and hospitals were in existence before the rebellion and then existing and (10) what "Popish" schoolmasters were within the county, their names and places of abode.

The order in which these inquiries were answered may first be noted. Having found that the county was divided into nine baronies and a half and that it contained 97 parishes "all consisting of impropriations and appropriations with their several endowments . . ." the Inquisition describes the respective baronies with the names of the parishes contained in each. A second specification of parishes, with their rectorial equations, follows in which (1) the names of the lands comprising each are returned (2) the acreages and values of the endowments in lands, glebes and tithes in 1640 and in 1657 respectively and (3) particulars of the names of patrons, condition of churches and other relative information called for by the Commission. This section occupies 19 of the 27 pages of the inquisition; it is followed by a brief return as to schools and concludes with recommendations as to the erection of churches and the amalgamation of parishes.

Returns in respect of two parishes may be quoted here as typical of the particulars furnished. First as regards the parish of Kildare, barony of Ophaly:

"Item the said Jury do further say upon their oaths that the parish of Kildare in the barony aforesaid extending in the towns of Kildare (except the abbys) Bralistowne, Relickstowne, Mooretowne, Rathwalkin, Knocknagalliagh, Knavanstown, Cairne, Kilbride, Agarvan, Green Hill, Dunmurchill, Cloghoroy Is a Rectory belonging to the Bishoprick Dean and Chapter of Kildare with all the great and small tithes and 96 acres of glebe and other tenements and gardens in Kildare, one moiety of Carne being 60 acres and 200 acres in Knavinstown and Killaurent and 17 acres and a mill in Agarvan belonging to the bishop alone worth £260 in the yeare 1640 and £83 at present; the State enjoyeth all the profitts, his Highness patron; the Church out of repair; Christopher Gulburne a preaching minister there."

For collation with the foregoing there is available two sections in the present volume—the appendix containing an abstract of the Book of S. & D. for the barony of Ophaly (p. 237) and the Civil Survey return of Church lands (p. 219).

As an instance of the return made by the Inquisition in respect of a parish concerning which the Civil Survey commissioners were unable to obtain prescribed particulars, the finding for that of Mainham, barony of Ikeathy and Oughterany is given:

"The parish of Mainham in the said Barony extending itself in the Towns of Borchole, Maynham, Clongoweswood, Rickardstown, Daniellstown, Moretown, and Birchballagh Is an Intire Rectory paying thirteen pecks of Corn to the Castle of Dublin; hath eleven acres of glebe and severall places worth £50 in the year 1640, worth £10 at present; the State enjoyeth the profitts. Nicholas Barnewall of Turvey, patron; the church ruined. Mr. Henry Usher Incumbent by patent."

While the Inquisition purports to be a return of all Kildare parishes, collation with the Civil Survey is desirable. At p. 5 of the former it is stated: "In the Barony of Carbrej two parishes, namely, the parish of Carbrej and the parish of Kilreney." At p. 15 where the revenues of these two parishes are set out it is observed that lands belonging to other parishes are included with those of the parish of Carbury. The Civil Survey (p. 169) returns nine parishes within this barony supplementing the particulars with the following note: "Two-thirds of the tithes of all and singular the parishes and towns in the aforesaid barony of Carbrje (excepting the parish of Killreenny) are enjoyed by Sir George Blundell Knight and were worth to be let in the year 1640 two hundred pounds per annum."

The findings in other matters may be briefly noticed. There were only two free "or other schools of learning" in the county—one at Naas "Kept by John Berkett" and one at Woodstock "Kept by Edward Harvey" both protestant schoolmasters; there were also two schoolmistresses. The jury knew "of no popish schoolmasters or popish schoolmistresses in the said county."

At Straffan, Leixlip, Timolin and Naas there were in all five alms houses or hospitals.

The recommendations as to the amalgamation of parishes—that for Maynooth may here be instanced⁴³—presaged the proceedings of some five years later when the Act 14 & 15 Chas. II cap. 10—the first relating to unions in Ireland—became law. Finally may be given the joint recommendation of the commissioners and jury as to the erection of churches:

"Item that the said Commissioners as well of their own knowledge and information as also by the concurrence of the Jury do humbly offer it as their opinion that there should be twenty and five churches erected and maintained in the said county for the inhabitants to resort unto to hear the word of God taught and for preaching ministers to live upon in the same."

The names of places where the churches should be erected are given.

There can be little doubt that this Inquisition was the outcome of contemporaneous proceedings for the establishment "of an able and Godly ministry" in all parts of the country. Already powers had been conferred for both the reduction and enlargement of parishes and for the appointment for this purpose of commissioners in every county. These powers are recited in the Additional Instructions of the Protector to the Lord Deputy and Council of 27 March 1656.⁴⁴ It was later recommended that "Orthodox ministers settled by the State in any parish" should receive the whole tithes and also the profits of the glebe lands.⁴⁵

⁴³ "And that to the said Church of Maynooth the several parishes and towns following should be united viz. the whole parish of Laraghbrine, the whole parish of Taghtow, the towns of Barbystowne, Belbus, and Donaghmore formerly of the par. of Straffan should be united, the farthest distance from the said church being not three miles, and valued now to be worth in glebes and tithes £120 p. ann."

In collating this Inquisition with the Civil Survey it will be observed in the extract from the former, printed above, for the parish of Kildare that See lands are included. As already indicated, the Civil Survey contains a distinct return in respect of such lands and while there is substantial agreement between the two returns there is some conflict as to acreages. The outstanding distinction is that the Civil Survey gives the names of the lessees and the number of acres held by each. There is the further contrast of the "Bishops land" being there shown distinctively from that of "Dean and Chapter land." The very brief returns under the former head in the Civil Survey and the Inquisition is explained by the extensive alienation of See lands in the previous century. The lands so alienated are set out in the main body of the present text and to facilitate their identification the licence for this purpose of 2nd June 1562 is here quoted.⁴⁶

This subject has been treated historically by Father Matthew Devitt, S.J. in the Journal of the Kildare Archaeological Society.⁴⁷ The earliest return of See lands printed by Father Devitt is from the Pipe Roll 4 Edward I covering the period from April 1272, when the See of Kildare became vacant by the death of Simon de Kilkenny, to 28 September 1276. This shows that revenues were derived from See lands and interests within five manors. Though without their manorial location, a more detailed specification as to names⁶ of places is given by an inquisition of December 1549 to which Father Devitt refers; this was taken on the death in the previous year of William Miagh the first bishop appointed to Kildare by Henry VIII. On the extensive alienation some thirteen years later of the See lands, many of which, states Fr. Devitt, originated as such in St. Brigid's time, the reverend author comments: "Alexander Craik has been severely censured for this wholesale alienation which was practically a disendowment of the bishopric. The blame however must be shared with the Queen to whose policy he conformed." On the authority of Blackstone and Hallam he adds: "That policy was deliberately directed to the spoliation of the bishoprics and the acquisition of their possessions either for her own use or to be granted out again to her favourites whom she thus gratified without any expense to herself."

The assignee of the See lands was Patrick Sarsfield of Bagotrath in the county of the city of Dublin.⁴⁸ In this connection attention may be called to the Sarsfield-Vesey papers in the Dublin P.R.O. Of these documents there is a comprehensive account by the Deputy Keeper, Mr. James F. Morrissey in the 56th Report, Appendix IV (p. 342). No less than 287 deeds ranging in date from 1414 to 1818 are listed. "They form perhaps the most interesting collection" states Mr. Morrissey "among the recent acquisitions of the Record Office."

A former land measure recorded by the present text is the ploughland. Within the barony of Carbury (p. 169) nearly all denominations, or groups thereof, are so equated and similarly, though to a lesser extent, those of the baronies of Narragh and Reban (p. 81) and Kilcullen (p. 73). A feature of the barony of Kilkea and Moone (p. 103) is the specification of the number of acres contained in each denomination according to "Extent or Country Measure." In some instances the ratio has been found to be one acre of "Country measure" to five of the estimated acreage set out as "Arable" in the adjoining table. For the remaining baronies however, none of the old land measures are indicated, though the ploughland as the unit of subsidy assessment and local taxation was in general use in the county as will presently be seen, from the 15th to the middle of the 19th century. An alternative source for the county as a whole is Rawson's Statistical Survey of Kildare drawn up for the Dublin Society and published in 1807. Here a series of tables provides the number of ploughlands in each barony, with parochial sub-divisions and names of "towns," the total number of ploughlands in the county being given as 162½. The acreable content of each barony, in presumably I.P.M. is likewise stated, the acreages in "Bog" and "Arable" being distinguished. The sources from which these particulars were drawn are not given but it is thought they were among the muniments of the Grand Jury archives. A map of the county made in 1752 by Noble & Keenan does not provide any table of areas, but a later map, circa 1794, by Major Alexander Taylor contains a list similar to that in the Dublin Society volume.

Though Kildare had acquired statutory recognition as an independent county in A.D. 1297⁴⁹ it would appear from an Act of 1497 that no "extent" of its ploughlands had been made up to the latter year; it was accordingly directed that certain gentlemen of the county should "extend said ploughlands, payment of the subsidy to be made according to that extent."⁵⁰ Further research may disclose whether the returns of ploughlands printed in the Dublin Society volume agree with the "extent" which presumably was made in pursuance of this Act. It has likewise to be determined whether they represent measures of value rather than of area. In his Preface to the Statute Rolls Edward IV, part 2 (p. LXXIII), the editor states: "The use of the ploughland as a measure of value rather than of area is shown by various enactments." Examples from the text of the reduction of assessments, quoted by Mr. Morrissey, include that of Athboy manor which was reduced from 4 to 2 ploughlands, the reason being that the heavy charges were causing "the inhabitants to leave their holdings." Again, in regard to the county Louth "containing but 4 baronies" which had always been extended at 18 score ploughlands, it was directed that this number should be moderated by a new "extent" and reduced to 12 score. It is understood that a particular writ of execution was called an extent or extendi facias because the sheriff was to cause the lands &c in question to be valued to their full extended value.⁵¹ Caution, therefore, should govern the attribution of any acreable content to the tables of ploughlands printed either in the Dublin Society volume or, for that matter, in the Civil Survey. A statement appended to one of the tables in the former is significant in this connection: "The barony of Carbery assessed for seventeen ploughlands." This agrees approximately with the number of ploughlands returned by the Civil Survey for the same region and which, for this purpose, is the only comparable unit of the county.

A characteristic feature of this land measure has been its inequality in size. In his project for the equalisation of ploughlands and the imposition of a fixed charge in lieu of H.M. cess and "the lords uncertain exactions," Sir John Perrott in 1585 stated that the opposition came from "those in the Pale who had great freedoms and large ploughlands, some are 300 or 100 (?400) acres and some but 120."⁵² Again, in the Lambeth Ms. (Carew Collection), quoted by Larcom, the varying acreable contents of ploughlands in different counties are set out thus: "Meath about 600 acres; in Louth about 300 acres; in the County of Dublin about 200; in Kildare about 200 acres."⁵³

While the acreable content of the ploughland is thus shown to have varied in different counties, it has been regarded in general as containing 120 acres. Exponents of the subject, however, do not always specify the particular kind of acres. Hardinge, for example, in his paper on the Mapped Surveys states "that the ploughland had been estimated to contain 120 acres of arable land over and above pasture, hills, rivers, woods wastes and bogs." Other sources must therefore be consulted.

"The Irish Seisreach" wrote Professor W. K. O'Sullivan "was the extent of land which occupied one plough and represented the ploughland or carrucate of England and the Saxon hide of land. According to some ancient records the hide contained 120 acres . . ." ⁵⁴ O'Donovan defining the ballybetagh states that it "contained four quarters or seisreaghs each seisragh containing 120 acres of the large Irish measure."⁵⁵ On the basis of the seisragh representing the ploughland, this definition permits a qualified estimation to be made.

In most instances examined of Kildare grants of land—Edward VI—Jas. I—as abstracted by Lodge from the Patent Rolls, one acre of great country measure is expressed as equivalent to three acres of "standard measure;" occasionally the equivalent is four acres. On the more general average this gives 360 acres as the content of the seisreach or ploughland.

Dr. Reeves in his well-known paper "On the Townland Distribution of Ireland" states that the "shesragh or plowland contained six score acres of native measure, that it was ascertained by estimation, not measurement; that it denoted the extent of ground a six-horse plough would turn up in a year" and that it was "the division best represented in our present allotment." He directed attention to the remarkable approximation of the number of "seisreachs or plowlands" in Ireland—66,600—to the number of townlands laid down by the Ordnance Survey—62,205. "In the former case," he states, "the average acreable extent of the plowland would be 304.8, while in the latter it is about 326.4." If Dr. Reeves had multiplied the total number of seisreachs by the former figure, instead of 120—"native acres"—he would have obtained—and to his liking—a more remarkable approximation to the area of the entire country, namely some twenty million acres.

⁵³ Larcom's paper is prefixed to the Irish Relief Correspondence in the Board of Works series (London, 1847). The Eliz. Fiants should also be consulted; see for example no. 6717.

⁵⁵ A. F. M., vol. III, p. 27 note g.

Finally, examination of the present text failed to disclose any consistent acreage for the ploughland. It was based on the supposition that the "ploughland" denoted tilled land or land fit for tillage and that the description "Arable" in the Civil Survey bore a like connotation. While in the barony of Narragh and Reban 320 acres was a fairly frequent equation, elsewhere in the text, particularly in the barony of Carbury, the variations were so great as to rule out any acreable significance whatsoever. The number of ploughlands given in the text and in the Dublin Society volume (viz. 17) for this latter barony, as already stated, closely approximate. There are some 30,000 plantation acres in this barony with a statute equivalent of 48,264. Making allowance for a substantial acreage described as "unprofitable" the conclusion is reached that the "ploughlands" returned by the Civil Survey represented some former measure of valuation.

It may be added that though numerous Acts of the Irish Parliament from A.D. 1556 had directed the extending and making of ploughlands of "like rate, estimate and quantity" their inequality largely persisted as the basis of local taxation until the middle years of the 19th century. To the enquiry of the Select Committee of 1824 as to how a specific sum if presented to the county at large would be apportioned on the several baronies, the Kildare treasurer replied: "The several baronies are each rated at so many ploughlands, and these are again subdivided into minor denominations on which the sum to be raised is apportioned. In some baronies the minor denominations are rated by the acre, in others an old modus is established on the townlands."⁵⁶

In the Journal of the Archaeological Society of Kildare the student has available the results of the research of many zealous investigators of the history of the county and its families. The Ordnance Survey Ms. Collection (R.I.A.) constitutes a further useful source which has been described for this county by O'Hanlon in the Journal of the Kilkenny Archaeological Society (New Series, vol. I, p. 294). At the conclusion of this contribution the author wrote in connection with the O.S. Memoir Papers for northern counties: "It is much to be regretted that the Government should allow all these valuable materials to remain in Ms., as, after the expense of compilation and collection has been defrayed it would only require the superintendence and direction of a few literary and scientific men and antiquaries to put them in a shape for publication . . ."

Old place-names and customs emerge in "The Rental Book of Gerald Fitzgerald, ninth Earl of Kildare Begun in the year 1518" and printed under the editorship of H. F. Hore in the Journal of the Kilkenny Archaeological Society (vols. V. VII. and VIII. consecutive). At page 110 (vol. VII.) it is stated: "We do not think it necessary to print in detail the various items comprised under the headings"—and there are many—therein specified. “These entries throw considerable light on the private affairs of the Earl, show how widely extended were his possessions, and ought to find a place in any future history of the house of Kildare.” It is understood that the Director of the National Library (Dr. R. J. Hayes) has now acquired a micro-film of the entire rental.

A note is called for here on the subject of an article by Lord Walter Fitzgerald relative to the proprietors of “Monasterevin” in the 16th century (Journal Kildare Arch. Soc. vol. IX—1918—21). “It is stated,” he says “in Harris’s edition of Ware’s Antiquities of Ireland (vol II p. 274) and in Archdall’s Monasticon Hibernicum (p. 334) that on the suppression of the Cistercian Monastery of Monasterevin, its scite, precincts and lands in Co. Kildare were granted by the Crown to George, Lord Audley, who assigned them to Sir Adam, Viscount Loftus of Ely. This statement is quite incorrect, and it has been unfortunately repeated in every work dealing with Monasterevin that has since been published . . . As a matter of fact there was no such person as George, Lord Audley, at this period . . .”

While Lord Walter gives the names of the Crown lessees from 1551 it may be pointed out here for the guidance of investigators that, according to Lodge’s Records of the Rolls, a grant was made to “Sir George Tuchett Knt., Lord Awdeley,” for ever of the late monastery or manor of “St. Evinus alias Rosglas” by patent dated 20th July 1605 under Privy Seal of 16 Feb. 1604.⁵⁷ An abstract of the grant is printed in the Calendar of Patent Rolls, James I, p. 74.

It is hoped that the present publication may lead to the recovery of the missing volume of the Civil Survey for the barony of “Ophaley” as likewise indeed of the duplicate set of the entire text believed to be in some private library. Certified copies, too, relating to baronies, parishes or lands would be of great worth.

I have to express my thanks to Mr. James F. Morrissey, former Deputy Keeper of the Public Record Office, for reading this introduction in Ms. To Mr. Breandán MacGiolla Choille, likewise, for his collaboration in the preparation of the Appendices. I am also indebted to Mr. Edward Keane, Genealogical Searcher, for the examination of memorials at the Registry of Deeds Office relative to the Alen estate.

Commission for Surveying of Lands.¹

THE said Commissioners,² by virtue of the authority and trust committed unto them in and by one Act of Parliament,³ entitled, "An Act for the speedy and effectual Satisfaction of the Adventurers for Lands in Ireland, and of the Arreares due to the Souldiery there, and of other publique Debts," do hereby authorize and appoint Henry Waddington, James Shane, Henry Greenoway, and Sebastian Brigham, Esqrs.,⁴ or any three or more of them, to hold and keep one or more courts of survey, for inquiring and finding out of all and every the honors, baronies, castles, mannors, messuages, lands, tenements, rents, annuities, reversions, remainders, possessions, and other hereditaments whatsoever, which at any time since the twenty-third day of October, in the year 1641, did belong unto any person or persons, whose lands upon the said 23rd day of October were, or at any time since are forfeited to the Commonwealth by vertue of an Act of Parliament, entituled, "An Act for the speedy and effectual Reducing of the Rebels in his Majestie's Kingdome of Ireland to their due Obedience to his Majestie and the Crown of England,"⁵ or by any other Act or Acts of Parliament,⁶ and likewise to inquire of and find out all such honors, baronies, castles, manors, lands, tenements, rents and hereditaments belonging unto the Crown in the year 1630, or at any time since; and also to inquire of and find out all honors, baronies, castles, mannors, lands, tenements, rents, or other hereditaments, lately belonging to any archbishop, bishop, dean, dean and chapter, or other officer, belonging to that hierarchy in Ireland, in the right of his archbishoprick, bishoprick, deanery or office aforesaid, within any of the baronies of Kilkeny, Rathconrath, Demifooore, Moyashell or Moycashell, Moygoish, Corkerry, Delvin, Ffarbill, territory of Birrawny, lands of Moydrum, within the county of Westmeath, together with all houses, edifices, timber, woods, mines, and other appurtenances belonging to all and every the premises within the county and places aforesaid; and to survey the same and make returne thereof distinctly by themselves, that is to say, fforfeited lands, with the appurtenances, by themselves; Crown lands, with the appurtenances by themselves; and lands belonging to the said hierarchy⁶ by themselves. In the holding and keeping of which courts of survey, the said Henry Waddington, &c., or any three or more of them, are hereby authorized and required to send for such persons as they shall judge any way able to informe them concerning the premises to come before them, and examine the said persons, upon oath, for the better discovery of what they know in and about the said premises. And it is further ordered, that in making returns of the said survey the said Henry Waddington, &c., doe observe and put in execution the instructions hereunto annexed ; and that before they doe act anything by vertue of this commission, they doe take the oath ensuing, viz. : “ You shall faithfully promise and swear, in the presence of the great and mighty God, that you shall well and truly execute the power and trust to you committed, by vertue of this commission and instructions, according to the best of your skill and knowledge.” And the said Henry Waddington and James Shane are to administer the said oath each unto other. And they, or any one or more of them, having so taken the said oath, are hereby authorized to administer the same unto the rest of the persons hereby appointed for the execution of this commission and instructions, as aforesaid.

DATED AT DUBLIN, THE 2ND OF JUNE, 1654.

Instructions to be observed by Henry Wadington, James Shane, Henry Greenoway, and Sebastian Brigham, Esqrs., in the Holding and Keeping of Courts of Survey of the Honors, Baronies, Castles, Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, in and by the annexed Commission given them in Charge to survey, and in the surveying of the same accordingly.

You are forthwith, upon receipt of your commission, to meet in some convenient place within the said county, to take the oath prescribed in your said commission, for the due execution of the trust thereby committed unto you, and to consider in what barony or place you shall judge it most convenient to appoint the first court of survey to bee kept, in order to the prosecution of your said commission, and accordingly to appoint time and place for that end. And for the more effectual performance of the said service, you are authorized to adjourne from time to time, and from place to place, in such manner as you shall judge to bee most conducible to the speedy and effectuall discharge of the said work. And in the first place you are to survey, according to the tenor of your commission and these instructions, the baronies of Clonlownan, Moycashell, Moygoish, Corkerry, Delvin, Ffarbill, territory of Birawny, and lands of Moydrum adjoining thereunto, being the baronies that are fallen by lot to the souldiery within the said county.

You are with all convenient speed to enter into and upon all and every the honors, baronies, mannors, castles, messuages, and other the lands, tenements, and hereditaments whatsoever mentioned in your commission, lying within the said county of Westmeath. And by your oathes of good and lawfull men, and by all other lawfull wayes and meanes, you are to inquire and find out the premises, and every of them, with their and every of their appurtenances. And you are to view and survey the same, or cause the same to be viewed and surveyed, so as the premises and every of them may (either by your own view, or by the view and testimony of good and lawfull persons, upon oath) bee certainly, distinctly, and entirely known from other lands, by their respective qualities, quantities, or number of acres by estimation (according to one and twenty foot to the perch, and one hundred and sixty perches to the acre), also by their names, scituacion, parish, or place where the same doe lye, with their respective meets and bounds ; the bogs, woods, and barren mountains, belonging to the respective premises, or any of them, being mentioned, and the quantity thereof estimated and distinguished from the profitable lands in the said survey. And for the better execution of your said commission, you are, as often as you see cause, to summon one or more juries, and to give them in charge to inquire and find out all and every the particulars of these instructions, and to cause such juries, when and as often as you shall judge if necessary, to view and tread the meets and bounds of the premises, and to forme all such other matters and things as are perfectly inquirable in courts of survey, as you shall give the same in charge unto them.

You are, by the like waies and meanes, to inquire of and find out the true yearly value of the premisses, and of every of them, as the same were lett for, or worth to be lett, in the year 1640, or at any time before ; and also what part of the premisses are chargeable with any pious and charitable use or uses ; and also to inquire of and survey, or cause to be surveyed, the buildings, houses, edifices, timber, woods, open quarries, or mines, upon the premises—and to make true and particular returns of the same in your bookes of survey.

You are to call before you all such persons as now are, or formerly have been, stewards, bayliffs, reeves, or collectors of rents, issues, revenues or profits of the premises, or any part thereof ; and likewise all such persons as now are, or formerly have been, tenants of the premises, or any part thereof, and also such other persons as you conceive may best know the premisses, or any of them, or as many of the said persons as you can conveniently summon to appear before you, and to examine them upon oath concerning the meets and bounds of the premisses, and concerning the rents, issues, profits, valuations, royalties, perquisites of courts, tythe, or impropriations, rights, titles, and other emoluments unto the premises, or any of them, belonging or appertaining, or held, or enjoyed with the same, as parte, parcell, or member thereof, or appendant to the same, together with their and every of their particular values, which you are distinctly to returne in your bookes of survey as aforesaid.

You are further strictly to inquire and examine as aforesaid what court-rolls, rentalls, bookes of survey, books of accompts, or what other records, evidences, or writings touching every the premises or any part of them, any of the said persons have come to the knowledge of ; and where and in whose custody the same do remayne ; which said court-rolls, rentalls, bookes of accompt, or other records, evidences, and writings you are to demand and receive into your custody.

In returning your survey of any honors, mannors, lands, tenements, or hereditaments, belonging to the Crown, or to archbishops, bishops, deans, deans and chapters, or other officers belonging to that hierarchy, you are particularly to inquire, by your waies and means aforesaid, what leases are in being of any part of the said last-mentioned premisses, when the same did respectively commence, for what terme granted, to whom the same were so granted, what rents and other duties were reserved thereupon, who are the present tenants of such lands so granted, and in whose right they hold the same, and when and from whom such right is or hath been made over unto them, or unto the persons for or from whom they hold the same respectively.

In case you find variance in the evidence which shall be given, touching the extent or valuation of the premises, or any part of them, or any other particular given in charge, and if the said variation or difference bee considerable, or if you conceive the evidence to differ from truth to the prejudice of the Commonwealth, or any other person, you are in those cases, as well by your own view as by such other good waies and meanes as you judge fitt, to informe yourselves of the truth in such particulars, and to certify as well the said evidence at large as your own judgment touching those particulars with the reasons inducing you to vary from such evidence.

Where you shall find no possibility, by reason of the wastnes or depopulation of the country, to make so particular a survey as is directed, or to inform yourselves so exactly of the meets, bounds, or other certenties of the premisses, or any of them, as is before required, you are in such cases to use your best wayes and meanes you can for the discovery of all and every the particulars herein given you in charge, and to certify upon all such particulars the manner of your proceedings and the causes why you cannot returne the said survey of them according to the instructions given you.

And because it is required that the quantity or number of acres contained in the premisses, and in every part or parcell of them, should be distinctly and particularly admeasured, you are, therefore, out of the survey taken by you of the premises, and every part of the same, to cause an abstract to bee drawn, containing the names of all and every such parcells of land as shall bee by you surveyed in every respective barony, according to the tenor of your commission, with their respective bounds and meets, and the parishes or places where the same do respectively lie, not mentioning the quantity or value of the same ; and the said abstract so drawn you are to deliver to such persons as shall be authorized and commissioned to admeasure the same. In which abstract you are to distinguish which of the said lands are forfeited lands, and also which lands are Crown lands, and which lands are lands lately belonging to any archbishop, bishop, dean, dean and chapter, or other officers of that hierarchy to the end the same may be distinctly admeasured, and distinct plotts returned of the same.

And for the better assistance of the said persons who shall be appointed to admeasure the premisses, or any part of them, you are hereby authorized and required by warrants under your hand, to appoint (out of the inhabitants of the said county), such and so many fitt persons as shall be judged necessary to attend the said surveyors in admeasuring of the premises, or any parts thereof, for to show and tread out the meets and bounds of any of the said lands respectively ; and also to informe and make known, as often as there shall be occasion, the meets of the several baronies and parishes, and the course that the said meets and bounds doe runne.

And for the more full and better discovery of the interest of the Commonwealth in or out of lands in the said county, you are further authorized and appointed to inquire what other lands in any of the baronies aforesaid are claymed by any English or Protestants, how meared, scituate, and bounded, and in what parishes or places respectively the said lands doe lye, what number of acres such lands so claymed do respectively conteine by estimation, according to the measure of 21 ffoot to the pole, and 160 poles to the acre ; what leases, annuities, rents or other profits are made off, or is issuing or of right ought to issue out of the same to the Commonwealth, in right of any person or persons who have forfeited their interests in the same to the Commonwealth ; which you are likewise to return in your survey, therein setting down the particular yearly values of every such lease, annuity, rent, or other profit.

Having finished the survey of every the said baronies within the said county, according to the aforementioned rules and instructions given you, you are to cause the same to bee fairly ingrossed in one or more bookes, setting down the survey of each barony by itself, and to return the same, attested under your hands, or the hands of any three or more of you, together with this Commission, and instructions, close sealed up, to the surveyor-generall, and a duplicate thereof, in like manner fairly ingrossed, attested and sealed up, to the register for forfeited lands in Ireland,—at Dublin, together with all records, evidences, and writings which shall come to your hands concerning the premisses or any part of them. In the returne, transcription or making up of which survey, or in any other thing relating to the premisses, you are further to observe such instructions as shall bee sent you by the said commissioners of the Commonwealth, or by the surveyor-generall.

You are to use all expedition in the execution of the aforementioned instructions, that the service of the Commonwealth may not bee retarded thereby ; and for the more effectual performance of the severall duties herein directed, you are hereby authorized to employ such and so many persons under you for writing, ingrossing, and transcribing of such dispositions, surveys, and duplicates, as you are to take and returne by vertue of the above said commission, and to give to each of them such allowance as you shall think fit, provided no unnecessary or immediate charge bee contracted thereby upon the Commonwealth ; and that no one person receive for his paines in writing or transcribing the depositions and surveys as aforesaid above the rate of twenty shillings per week.

Lastly, you are not without speciall lycense or order in writing from the said commissioners to discover to any person the particular values, extent, or the like certainties of the premisses to bee by you surveyed, according to this commission, other than what was before directed to such as shall bee appointed to admeasure any part of the said premisses, nor to keep any coppies of the same with your selves or with any of those that shall bee employed by you.

Note on the MS. Materials for the Civil Survey of 1654-56.

(Public Record Office and Quit Rent Office, Ireland).

In the Headfort Collection of Records purchased by the Commissioners of Woods Forests and Land Revenues of the Crown in 1837 there were several volumes (portion of a complete set) of the Civil Survey made of certain counties of Ireland in the year 1654-5 ; these volumes were then deposited in their Quit Rent Office, Dublin.

This Quit Rent Office collection of Survey Books included all the barony volumes for the Counties of Donegal, Limerick, Londonderry, Meath, Tipperary, Tyrone, Waterford, Dublin (except Newcastle and Uppercross), Kildare (except Ophaley), and Wexford (except Forth). Detailed lists of these barony volumes are given in a report on the Headfort Collection, printed in the Reports of the Irish Record Commissioners, Vol. II, pp. 21-24.

The Civil Survey was undertaken for seventeen other counties ; but it would appear that any Surveys for these counties perished in the fire in the Surveyor-General's Office (Essex Street, Dublin), in 1711.

The Civil Survey consists of Returns of the extent and value of the forfeited lands. It contains very many facts not noted in the particulars and tables accompanying the subsequent mapped Down Survey which was throughout facilitated by the Abstracts made from the Civil Survey.

The Commissioners of Woods, Forests and Land Revenues, at the instance of Mr. J. Harper Scaife, the Superintendent of their Dublin Office, offered this Quit Rent Office Collection of Civil Survey Volumes to the Public Record Office of Ireland, on condition that copies of these Volumes should be prepared in the Public Record Office and furnished to them for constant use in the Quit Rent Office, Dublin.

Mr. James Mills, Deputy Keeper of the Records, gladly accepted the offer. Copies were prepared at the Public Record Office during the years 1900-1910, fresh batches of Civil Survey volumes being deposited there after copies of volumes in the previous batch had been furnished to the Quit Rent Office. By the close of 1910, this work was completed ; all the original Civil Survey Books were deposited in the Public Record Office, and copies of them, as stipulated, had been furnished to the Quit Rent Office.

The Quit Rent Office also received a copy of an official copy of the Civil Survey of the barony of Clanmorris, Co. Kerry, presented to the Public Record Office during the above period ; the original Survey is not forthcoming.

These volumes were a very important addition to the Records of the Land Settlement under the Commonwealth already in the Public Record Office. They were then available for public inspection, with every facility. They were highly useful as regards local history and as to certain questions of title. They were specially valuable for topography, the Surveys of some counties being particularly rich in boundary names and place names now often obsolete, or till now unknown.

The principal reason for their transfer was that Records of such value ought to be deposited in the Public Record Office. There they perished in the Summer of 1922.

Happily the Civil survey copies furnished to the Quit Rent Office, and now deposited there, substantially counter-balance that loss; some of them were compared with the originals by Mr. James Mills, then Deputy-Keeper of the Records, and the remainder by the writer of this Note, then Certifying Officer. All may be accepted as true and authentic copies of the originals destroyed in the year 1922.

NOTE ON MAPS

The outline Map of Kildare, showing Boundaries of Baronies A.D. 1655-56, prefixed to this volume, is intended to aid the historical student by showing the relative positions and extent of these historic divisions. A few modern place-names have been added to serve as additional guiding points.

The Civil Survey, A.D. 1654-56, was followed by the Maps of The Down Survey A.D. 1655-58 made under the direction of Dr. (later Sir) William Petty, Surveyor-General.

As for other counties, the ten large-scale Barony Maps of The Down Survey for Kildare have been reproduced, full size, from the set now in the Bibliotheque Nationale, Paris. They will be found most useful in connection with the Civil Survey Prices :—Uncoloured 3s. 6d. each ; coloured as in the Paris Maps 7s. 6d. each.

The following Ordnance Survey maps and plans will in varying ways be also of use :—

¹ Now represented by the modern baronies of Narragh and Reban East and Narragh and Reban West. The modern barony of Narragh and Reban East includes part of the parish of Moone—remainder in baronies of Kilkea and Moone and of Offaly East—and part of the parish of Tankardstown, the remainder being in the barony of Kilkea and Moone and in the barony of Ballyadams, Leix (Queen's County).

²Remainder in barony of Ballyadams, Leix.

³Remainder in barony of Kilkea and Moone, co. Kildare.

⁴According to the text the northern boundary of this parish was the parish of "Harristowne." In the King's Co. Book of Survey and Distribution the parish of "Harristowne and Belaghbreckan" (Ballybrackan) is returned within the barony of Philipstown (p. 18). Under the Act 6 and 7 Wm. IV c. 84, s. 51, the parish of Harristown, part of the parish of Ballybrackan, and certain lands including Ardellis Upper and Lower "in the parish of Fontstown" were transferred from the barony of Philipstown Upper, King's county, to the barony of Offaly west co. Kildare. The King's co. Book of Survey and Distribution does not return a parish of "Fontstown" in the barony stated, the lands of Ardellis being there included in the parish of "Harristowne and Belaghbreckan," cf., Census Report of 1841, p. 69. The modern parish of Fontstown resides, as indicated, within the modern baronies of Narragh and Reban East and Offaly West. A parish of "Fontstown," now called Ballyadams, will be found returned (p. 108) in the Queen's co. Book of Survey and Distribution.

⁵ Remainder in barony of Kilkea and Moon.

CHURCH LANDS CO. KILDARE

NOTE.—In the absence of pagination in the Civil Survey returns of Church lands, the numeration within square brackets has been provided to indicate the beginning of each new page of text and for the purpose of the indexes which have been compiled for this volume. It will be found that most names of lands specified are those of the parishes to which they belong "glebes" being usually located within such lands. As with the remainder of the text, the barony is the unit of the returns. The order in which the baronies appear is here indicated:

Barony of Ophaly, CO. KILDARE

(BOOK OF SURVEY AND DISTRIBUTION)

BARONY OF OPHALY, CO. KILDARE
(EXTRACT FROM THE BOOK OF SURVEY & DISTRIBUTION)

NOTE.—As has been already noticed in the Introduction, the Barony of Ophaly is wanting in the Civil Survey text for County Kildare. To help to close this gap, an extract has been taken from the Kildare Book of Survey and Distribution (No. 2) in the Quit Rent Office set now lodged in the Public Record Office. The columns whose captions were taken from elsewhere in the same set give the 1641 proprietors, the names of denominations, the admeasured number of unprofitable and profitable acres. With the exception of the valuation of the lands in 1641, the information here supplied for each denomination is almost as full as that given in the columnar sections of the Civil Survey. It is to be noted, however, that the sum of denominations in the Book of Survey and Distribution is less than that of the Civil Survey due to the fact that the former were mainly concerned with forfeited lands.

This extract runs from pages 49 to 56 in the Kildare Book of Survey and Distribution and the numbers on the extreme right show where the pages commence in the original text. The index to proprietors and lands gives reference to the pagination of the original, as does the list of parishes following this note. The letters C.S. in the first column indicate that the Civil Survey was the source of information while the letter C surmounted by a cross signifies church lands. The asterisk given opposite Abbey land in Kildare (end of page 54) represents in the original a cross surrounded by a circle. I. p : or I. pa : indicates Irish papist ; ptest : protestant.
